

The Most Amazing Playrooms in NYC

By Lauren Barth | July 18, 2017

Summer can be hard in NYC. Parents are constantly seeking ways to keep their kids entertained, engaged, and occupied; and balance physical outdoor activities with relaxing downtime inside. And that's where these amazing playrooms come into play (get it?). They're designed to educate and inspire tykes, toddlers, and families.

Each of the rooms below, located in a luxury NYC building, offers a picture-perfect backdrop and an opportunity to cool off and blow off steam.

Fifty Third & Eighth

Interactive chalk walls? Check. Book shelves that look more like art installations than a library? Check. The quirky playroom at Hell's Kitchen luxury condominium Fifty Third & Eighth celebrates the creative spirit of the surrounding vibrant neighborhood with space for children to draw, read and play with provided toys, keeping kids occupied and parents happy.
